GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

'Tis easy enough to be pleasant, When life flows along like song;

But the man worth while is the one who will a nile When everything goes dead wrong."

We judge by the fact that Gen. Lejeune is going down to attend to his case in person that he really thinks Sandino is a great seizer.

Will Rogers was probably invited to the Jackson Day dinner before they knew Al Smith was going to make a joke out of it.

George McBride's reputation of being the "brainiest man" in base-ball was obtained, it will be recalled, during those years when under his management the Senators with masterly strategy finished every season in a snug berth in the cellar.

The rumor that a couple of run away Marines are assisting Sandino in his campaign doubtless grows out disclosure that the General has directed his army not to drink any-thing stronger than weak tea when going into battle.

A little of that kind of strategy might have put the German army through the Champagne district two days ahead of schedule and resulted in the capture of Paris in August,

However, Gen. Sandino sure would have been a total loss fighting the "battle of Paris."

The threat of an irate Congress man to reverse Admiral Magruder's 'none-of-your-business" in connection with his magazine rate is calculated eventually to disclose just how much greater the pen is than the sword, anyhow.

The police unearth a liquor plot 'tis said, at 604 H street, Well, poor Mrs. Surratt was never able to exgot mixed up in at that address.

Nearly 10,000 spectators will be admitted to the big show at Kansas City next June, but what interests Tex Rickard is how many ringside seats will be available at the Democratic National Convention.

UPON NEGOTIATIONS

Plan Disliked as Tending to Endless Debate to Fix on Aggressor.

A proposal from Paris to amend the Kellogg antiwar declaration treaty plan by confining it to wars of aggres cast a cloud yesterday over prospects for early signature of such a pact by France and the United States and its presentation to the other great nations of the world for adhesion was presented at the State Department by Ambassador Claudel. It drew out an immediate official, though informal, comment that introduction of the words aggressive war would open the door to endless debate over determination of the aggressor in any conflict, The form of the American rejoinder to this unexpected twist in the antiwar negotiations is still to be decided. That it will be unfavorable in character is a foregone conclusion.

The Kellogg plan embraced a pro posal to declare any resort to war in ettlement of disputes between any two of the signatories to the projected multilateral treaty outside the national policy of those states. It did not conemplate group action among the owers or the erection of any other machinery for the maintenance of seace than already exists in the form of arbitration and conciliation treaties.

Whole Picture Changed.

In the American viewpoint the French amendment changes the whole picture. If only aggressive wars are to be repudiated in the declaration, it is argued that as a logical sequence some machinery to determine aggressor states must be invented. The Washington Government has been unable to accept thus far any proposals that have been made as to how this might tions from an American viewpoint that have prevented American adherence to previous plans for virtually outlawing states that make aggressive war apply also to the French amendment to the Kellogg proposal.

Prosecutor Tells Court He Has Not Been Informed of Accusation Against Him.

FLARE-UP AT TRIAL AS HOOVER TESTIFIES

Justice Siddons Replies, Say ing He Can Not See Any Deprivation; Others Heard.

By NORMAN W. BAXTER.

The strained atmosphere in which he contempt case against Harry F. Sinclair and five other respondents and the charge of intimidating Edward J. Kidwell, jr., Fall-Sinclair juror and witess in the contempt hearing, has been proceeding resulted yesterday in an astion by James J. O'Leary, Assistant Section by James J. O'Leary, Assistant District Attorney, that he had been "deprived of the right of being informed of the nature and character of the accusation against him." The prosecutor, who is charged by counsel for the respondents in the contempt proceedings with being the individual who intimidated and correct Kidwell said further that he believed the present phase of the investigation to be an "absolute waste of time" and that it was "playing in the hands of the defendants."

The flare-up in the day's proceedings came during the testimony of Edward Towers, a district surveyor, who on one occasion accompanied Mr. O'Leary and Kidwell to Anacostia for the purpose of making some measurements. After he had testified at length George P. Höver, of counsel for Sinclair, objected to relevancy of the testimony. Mr. O'Leary in reply stated that he was trying to clear up the charges against him.

Hunting Testimony, Claim.

"Unfortunately," he continued, "in this case the prisoner has been deprived of the right of being informed of the nature and character of the accusation against him. "When your Honor announces that you are satisfied it is cleared up; when your Honor states from the bench that you are satisfied that the charge is unfounded, I will stop, your Honor."

An additional endowment of two chairs in the proposed school of Government at George Washington University has been established by the National League of Masonic Clubs, meeting at Philadelphia, it was announced last night. In the absence of Dean Clyde H. No such significance was apparently attached to this coincidence as to the fact that Avils invariably put a comma instead of a period after "id." Cusachs expressed the opinion that the person responsible for the text of the docuresponsions for the execution to do the ments was an educated individual cognizant of the form which Mexican official correspondence takes while the person who actually wrote the documents was not well educated and had only a crude idea of correct Spanish.

Too Many to Enumerate.

Commander Cusachs said he had made a very careful study of the 71 documents submitted by Hearst and had found so many mistakes in them that it was almost impossible to enumerate them. There were more than 200 accents omitted, he said, and more than 100 misplaced, 86 misspelled words and no regard for punctuation whatever. There were accents all the way through where they need not be, he added.

New York, in writing to his brother-in-law. American Ambassador Tellez, in Washington, spelled his name Telles instead of Tellez, according to the documents. When the documents refer to closing the doors of a bank, for example, they use the verb, "serrar" instead of "cerrar," making the actual text read "sawing down the doors of the bank." The mistakes were characterized as so crude by Commander Cusachs that he referred to them as impudent mistakes by an ignorant man.

Testimony during the early part of yesterday's hearing was all calculated to break down the last vestige of authenticity of the documents themselves.

The committee, however, appeared to be more interested in the alleged letter from Senator La Pollette to President Calles, which Page had endeavored to procure for the Philadelphia Public Ledger shortly before Page entered the service of Hearst. Senator Reed called Page's attention to Johnson.

"Yes, sir."
"How did you find him?"
Page's memory failed him as to how he had found him, where he had seen him, what he had talked about or what his name was. On March 11, 1926, the Philadelphia Public Ledger sent him $300 to get the original of "the La Follette letter." but still Page had no idea of the name of the man who was to supply the letter and did not get the original.

Pointed Questions Asked.

It became somewhat embarrassing for the witness at this point as Senator Johnson stressed pointed questions.
And then Senator Reed made another effort to refresh Page's memory. He read extracts from the letter which Page a few days ago wrote to Senator La Follette about the incident. In this letter Page spoke of seeing the Mexican a number of times, of getting in touch with him for the third time, of his coming back with torn scraps of paper "You now mean to tell us you have no idea who he was?" persisted Senator Reed, Commander Ellsberg said it was thought wiser to try to save the entire crew rather than relieve six men who were at the time apparently in good condition.

"There were no signals from the submarine aft of the torpedo room," he said: "It was inferred that the 34 men in the aft compartments, granting that these rooms were not flooded, were unconscious. Had we blown air into these compartments it would have driven out all or part of the water, but it would also have placed the men under pressure that would have killed them off very quickly. They would have been incapable of turning the valves to shut off the air.

To this narrative was added a discourse on safety devices, which concluded with the statement that the submarines of the United States Navy had as many of these as similar vessels in any other navy. The witness concluded his testimony with a glowing tribute to the divers who risked their lives in submarine salvage work.

He told of the menace of too rapid change of pressure to divers. To avoid the dreaded "bends" caused by the nitrogen forming bubbles in the arteries or spinal column, it was necessary to bring the diver up by stages. It was preferable to complete the decompression process under water, but the rough water prevailing at Provincetown forced the salvage officers to complete the

Asked by Commander Leslie E. again if he had spent his time that Sunday putting down wire cables for markers instead of attempting to raise the submarine in the limited diving time available."

Commander Elisberg dismissed the theory that the men in the torpedo room of the submarine might have escaped by way of the torpedo tubes. He said that a man in the tube probably would have been drowned before he could scramble out through the outer shutters after these had been opened. If he emerged alive it was unlikely that he would have been able to swim the 100 feet to the surface.

In regard to submarine raising devices, the witness said that the only proyed method was the pontoon. He said that the German ship Vulcan, designed for the purpose, had proved a failure because she was not a seagoing boat, and could not lift the larger type of submarines. He said that lifting eyes had not been installed on modern submarines because they would not stand the strain and because no means existed of lifting the heavy tonnage of the vessels.

Mr. Work's Pointer On Auction Bridge

A T Contract, as at Auction Bridge.
Third Hand after two passes needs more strength to justify a
No Trump bid than Dealer or Second
Hand after one pass because, when Third Hand's turn comes to bid, he has a partner who has passed. Therefore he should have a count of not less than 14 with at least three suits stopped. When vulnerable and not overly expert, conservatism suggests 15 as a sound minimum. Illustrations

No. 7 counts 14, nas two Tens, an even division and four cards in the defenseless suit. No. 8 counts 14, has one Ten, an even division and four suits stopped. After two passes, either would qualify for a Third Hand No Trump. The two following hands are just short of the requisite strength for an original No Trump bid. The count set for a router Hand is 15, but coupled with it is the requirement that both Majors should be safely stopped and contain at least three cards.

(This series of Contract Bridge articles will be continued on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week.)

A-X-X ♥ K-J-X-X ₩ A-X-X-X A-J-X

In both, the count is only 13 and al-though three suits are stopped and the distribution is favorable it is not wise to bid when the count is less than 14. FOURTH HAND ORIGINAL BID.

Fourth Hand after three passes has to decide whether the hand should be played or thrown out; with a doubtful holding he has a delicate situation presented to him because he does not wish to throw out a hand which will produce a score for his side (partial scores being of much greater advantage in Contract than in Auction Bridge), but opening the bidding may let the adversaries into an advantageous secondary bid. The count set for a Fourth Hand is 15, but coupled with it is the requirement that both Majors should be safely stopped and contain at least three cards.

THE SILVER LINING OF INHERITABLE DISEASE.

I is not to be expected that all the children born in a family in which there is an inheritable disease or defect will exhibit the effects of the bad inheritance. Even those diseases and defects where inheritance is most likely to occur will miss a large proportion of the offspring. Those with

There are inheritable diseases that are sex limited. Such will skip entirely all the children of one sex. And, finally, there is a considerable tendency for human strains to throw off abnormalities, and somehow or other, to get back on the established level which we call normal.

A recent study of a family of bleeders reported in the American Journal of Heredity shows how feeble is the tend-ency to the continued development of this condition in a family tree. There are few other conditions with such well established heredity laws. It is known to be inheritable through the female.

The Homemaker

Now, Sarah, my dear, I am going very definite opinion, but I wonder to do just the most dreadful thing—let you down. I do not like the idea, for your enthusiasm sped through the lines of your interesting letter and fired me with a feeling that I should like to be at the wedding, look on your smiling bride face—and eat a bit of good luck in your wedding cakel But first off the reel—no! I do not fancy your dropping your H when you drop your childhood name. "Sara" may be very charming and interested in a wedding? We all are, and we shall all be willing to give you a bit of help—of that I am sure. Now to our menu. cake: But lifts off the reel-no? I do

But You was you would and subtle when it belongs to a person who has been Sara since her early beginnings, but you see, you would still be Sarah—as quaint and old-fash-loned as your letter implies and as foreign to your affectation as the day is long! Therefore—Sarah you would ever remain—in my opinion, of course. And speaking of opinions—I've a mind that my own should not be enough for this emergency, and wish to ask the cooperation of the friends I have gathered around me out in the unknown land to which our column goes. Please, will you write me a note, each of you, to give me your ideas of how we older persons should answer this Sarah who is 20, and to be married. I shall not quote her letter, as much o' it comes to me personally—but tell you in brief, her idea, She feels that white is as old fashinoed as her name, that palest of pale yellow would make of her a lovely bride, since she is dark, and that yellow-roses, a yellow cake (for which I am to send her the directions), yellow ribbon, yellow kneeling pillows—yellow everything would be not only a becoming proposition, but a nice departure from the usual in weddings. These are not her words, but they are her ideas.

Advice For Teacher.

Advice For Teacher.

Dear Miss McDonald: Regarding that teacher with the two sweethearts, why should she marry either? Why do even such intelligent women continue to think in terms of slavery and marriage? Why not keep both men? The superior woman, like the superior man, tends not toward single blessedness but multiple independence. She should not marry. As monogneism is an invention of theology, so monogany is an invention of ethics. The same necessity that orders and constrains the actions of living beings produces effects which are often unexpected and sometimes absurd. Not absurd in her case, perhaps, but at least, you will admit, discomforting. And so if we had a good philosophical and wise understanding of nature then know that free-will is an illusion and that physiological affinities are as exactly determined as are chemical combination and, like them, may be summed up in a formula.

Morals change so, religions which endure for a long time, such as Judea—Christianity—vary their moral law. Now that we have disposed of a few reasons for a disquieting conscience which Huckleberry Finn says "ain't got no sense and just goes for a fellow anyhow." It's a little of a relief to know that institutions and not individuals are the enemies and that life as an art is rendered barren by our systems, representing every one of them a sterile trumph of intellect over the emotions. Here, too, as in the lesser arts, the great use of the intellect should be as a none too rigid guide, not as a self-important.

"None of Your Business," He Tells Representative Miller in Discussing Articles.

CLASH BRINGS THREAT TO QUIT FROM UPDIKE

Says He Will Withdraw if "Insults to Admiral" Are Not Discontinued.

(Associated Press.)

With a remark, "That is none of your business," Admiral Thomas P. Magruder yesterday refused to tell the House naval committee how much he had received for magazine articles accusing the Navy Department of waste and over organization.

Magruder, who was relieved of the command of the Philadelphia Navy Yard shortly after his articles appeared, snapped out the six-word answer to a question by Representative Miller (Republican), Washington. In almost the same breath he added that he regretted that he had lost his temper.

Miller, however, insisted that the committee should know about it and told the admiral that he, as a Member of Congress, would make it "some of my business."

Interrupting, Representative Britten (Republican), Illinois, said he had been informed the Saturday Evening Post had paid the admiral $750 apiece for the articles, or a total of $3,000.

"The record speaks for itself," replied Updike.

Magruder, during his testimony, said that the Navy needed "one great base" on the Pacific where the fleet could be concentrated that that he favored Pearl Harbor, Hawali. He said that one reason for advocating the abolition of the navy yards at New York, Portsmouth N. H., and Charleston, S. C., was because only one-third of the fleet now was based on the Atlantic.

The Pearl Harbor base also was favored by Representative Woodruff (Republican), Michigan, who said that with a base there "no nation in the world would have the temerity to attack us on the Pacific." Magruder said that such was his view, but added that Pearl Harbor had one fallacy in that it was "susceptible to attack at night," but that this could not be avoided.

Magruder will appear before the committee again Monday.

Sees Nothing Unfavorable in $3,810,023,000 Advances to Brokerage Houses.

(Associated Press.)

(Associated Press.)

Although loans to brokers and dealers held by New York Federal Reserve member banks have reached the unprecedented height of $3.810,023,000 President Coolidge does not see any reason for unfavorable comment.

The loans are larger than at any time within the history of the Federal Reserve system and are approximately $1.000,000 in excess of those reported January 5, 1927. During the last month they increased by approximately $100,000,000 and except for a few minor fluctuations they have increased steadily for the last eighteen months.

The President, it was said at the White House yesterday, believes the increase represents a natural expansion of business in the securities market and sees nothing unfavorable in it.

He also sees signs of continued prosperity in the increase of 1.4 per cent in postal receipts for last December over December, 1926. The postal increase, the President believes, shows an even distribution over the country and reflects a generally prosperous condi-

From the time Washington was made commander in chief until the end of his second term as President, a period of 16 years—was rarely ever at Mount Vernon, Beck pointed out. Yet, he argued, no one would ever question that he was an inhabitant of Virginia Franklin, he said, spent nearly 10

There, after a change of clothes, Dr

Iuncheon was served and an inspection of the plantation was made.

One of the prettlest and most impressive events staged for Col. Lindbergh during his stay thus far in Nicaragua was a "singsong" given by 800 school children before the American Legation today.

The boys and girls assembled on a side street and then marched to the legation headed by a band. The girls were dressed in white and blue and carried large bouquets and Nicaraguan flags, while the boys, also dressed in white and blue, had badges with the Nicaraguan colors on their coats.

The first number on their program was "The Star-Spangled Banner," and the way in which the children sang it delighted the Americans present. Thousands of the spectators gathered in front of the legation, and as the colonel appeared on an upper balcony he was given a tremendous ovation. He then thanked them in few words and said that he hoped he could stay longer in Nicaragua next time.

Representative James M. Beck (Republican), of Pennsylvania, appeared before elections committee and defended his right to take seat. Right was challenged on opening day by Minority Leader Garrett, who charged Beck was not a legal resident of the Pennsylvania district since 1912, was stricken December 4 while he was preparing to come to Washington for the opening of the session. His physicians say he probably will be able to leave the hospital in about two weeks.

IN NICARAGUA.

It was too much to expect that all Americans would stand by their Government in its determination to protect American interests and incidentally to chable the Nicaraguan people to choose a government of their own. This is a pplitical year, and politicians are taking advantage of the situation in Nicaragua in the hope of embarrassing the administration. These politicians exhibit varying degrees of pusillanimity in their suggestions for dealing with the situation. Most of them would have the United States scuttle from its duty, while some of them propose abject surrender to the bandit Sandino. A pending Senate resolution seems to contemplate the overruling of the President by the Senate committee on foreign relations. Of course, the committee would first send for Mr. Coolidge and put him on the gridiron. His refusal to answer questions would of course subject him to punishment for contempt, and the rest would be easy.

An ugly report from Nicaragua intimates that deserting marines are aiding Sandino by drilling his men and instructing them in tactics practiced by the Marine Corps. This report should not be accepted as true. Absolute proof must be forthcoming before the American people will believe that any one wearing the uniform of the United States is a traitor.

The Government is moving energetically against Sandino. He has robbed Americans and destroyed American property. He is now in possession of American property, after having tried to assassinate its owner, an American citizen.

The people of Nicaragua are not opposing the United States in its cooperation with the Nicaraguan government for the purpose of wiping out the outlaw Sandino and insuring a fair and free election in Nicaragua. The temper of the Nicaraguan people is shown by their reception of Col. Lindbergh. He has been greeted with extreme cordiality by unprecedented crowds.

There is only one honorable course for the United States to pursue in this matter. That is to dispatch Sandino and his gang without delay. The Marine Corps is on this job. It will perform its duty promptly and thoroughly.

A TWOFOLD STANDARD.

In England, at least, the much-boosted single standard for male and female does not hold in everything. It applies in conduct now as ground for petition to the courts for divorce, but in education one finds something else again It appears that last autumn the headmistresses of secondary schools made a representation to the examinations council of the Board of Education to the effect that there should be less rigidity in the subjects required to qualify for the school certificate. Questioned specifically as to whether a certificate, which included English, botany, art, needlework and cookery, should be of the same value as the certificate which included English, Latin, French, mathematics and science, the representatives of the eadmistresses coolly and courageously replied that that was exactly what was meant. Aghast at this reactionary and revolutionary proposal, the Board of Education referred it to the Headmasters' Association for an opinion, and at the Headmasters' Conference, held at Rughy School recently, a resolution was adopted unanimously declaring that it was neither necessary nor desirable that the conditions of examination should be identical for girls and Should the Board of Education act favorably on the policy thus dually recommended, the result will be to throw the whole scheme of British secondary education out of gear, for it is quite evident that the universities and the professional bodies, which now accept the school certificate as satisfying entrance requirements, will no longer do so in those cases in which the proficiency shown is mainly in typically feminine handicrafts. It is, of course, fine thing to be able to sew a button on, and all the finer because it is an accomplishment rarely possessed by the modern girl, but it will scarcely prove an open sesame to the groves of Academe or to hard-hearted professional or technical schools.

The difficulty of reaching the present single standard and the hard labor it involves were forcibly illustrated by one headmaster of a coeducational school, who said that as many girls as boys from his school passed the certificate examination, but that the girls "suffered" more in the process.

A great educational experiment is evidently on hand in England. It will be interesting as well as instructive to see how it will work out.

CHARGES OF RADIO MONOPOLY.

Long smoldering resentment toward the Federal Radio Commission on the part of the independent broadcasters has broken out. Ever since organization of the commission, the small broadcasters have feared a monopoly of the air. D. W. May, manager of station WTRL, Midland Park, N. J., yesterday threw down the gauntlet to the Senate interstate commerce committee, meeting to consider the nominations of Sam Pickard, of Kansas; Chester H. Caldwell, of New York, and Harold A. La Fount, of Utah, to be members of the commission, with the accusation that the commission is creating a monopoly through the National Broadcasting Co. chain

It was anticipated generally that the commission would have a stormy career. When the radio law was enacted last March, the ether was crowded to the point of suffocation. As various methods of bringing order out of chaos were experimented with, it became increasingly apparent that the only genuine relief lay in reduction of the number of stations. Finally the commission announced this as its policy the reduction to be guided by the provision in the law granting preferential treatment to such stations as best served the public good.

The small stations feel that they are being discriminated against-that refusals to renew licenses have been directed against the independents. On the other hand, the commission insists that its only criterion has been the public benefit.

In the meantime, Mauritz A. Hallgren takes up the cause of the independent broadcasters in an article contributed to the current issue of The Nation. He says, in part:

review of the licenses granted in the few months shows that almost without exception applications received from out exception applications received from the Radio Corporation of America group have been approved, while those from dis-sentient concerns have usually been listed for future hearing. Lately the Federal Radio Commission has put into effect a new wave-length reallocation scheme under which as many as 300 of the 685 broadcasting stations in the country may be refused license renewals after the first be refused license renewals after the first of the year. Already 25 licenses have been forced off the air. Most radio experts readily agree that this move may eventu-ally clear away much of the interference in and overcrowding of the available broadcasting channels; but it is nevertheless noteworthy that none of the radio trust's stations has been among those which have fallen by the wayside.

Under present law the commission's executive powers will cease on March 15. Thereafter it will be merely a court of appeal with which broadcasters dissatisfied with rulings of the Department of Commerce may lodge their complaints. Legislation is to be introduced giving the commission another year of life, in the belief that it is better qualified, as the result of its year's experience, than any other body to deal with the intricate problems of radio control. Should such bills fail of enactment, however, the commission, as an appellate body, will continue to occupy a position of authority. Through it the charges of monopoly can be freely aired and thoroughly in-

SECRET OF LONG LIFE.

Dr. Serge Voronoff claims that there is no reason why human beings should not live to be 100 years old. He says, "As a matter of fact, every human being should live to be at least the age of 140."

The French government has put the Castle Grimaldi at the disposal of the famous surgeon in order that he may conduct scientific experiments with regard to the extension of human life. This spot was chosen because of its large private park, in which France has installed $25,000 worth of monkeys in the last five years for experimentation purposes

Dr. Voronoff met an Irishman 115 years old and an Egyptian 132 years old. "They are not superhuman," he remarks, "but ordinary human beings who have lived on food and air." Death at 70 is caused by wrong diet, disease, and that general but preventable decrease of vitality known as old age, according to Dr. Voronoff. He bases his argument on scientific experiments with animals, which prove that the normal life of an animal is seven times as long as the time required for it to reach maturity. "Man does not attain maturity till the age of 20. Therefore, man-including woman ought to live seven times 20 years, or 140."

But an animal has great advantages in the struggle for longevity. It does not worry, for example. If man could cut out worry his life would be automatically prolonged. He could eat what he pleased, and would sleep well. Man's own inventions complicate his existence and intensify his worries. If Dr. Voronoff can develop an antiworry gland in the human make-up he will find the secret of long life.

SPAIN'S LOST TREASURE.

"Pieces-of-eight! Pieces-of-eight!" Search has again been authorized for the treasure said to lie at the bottom of Vigo Bay, in Spain. The Spanish government has recently renewed a concession to an Italian concern to raise what legend declares to be the greatest lost treasure in history. Nearly 200 stately galleons, laden with gold and silver plate from the New World, representing a total value of something over $100,000,000. are reputed to have gone down in Vigo's waters under an attack by English and Dutch ships. It is this ancient hoard which supplies the theme of Jules Verne's classic, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." The story goes that, in the year 1702, a combined English and Dutch fleet was besieg-ing Cadiz, the regular port of arrival for Spanish galleons from the New World. A long procession of ships, loaded with gold and silver bullion from Mexico, was due shortly, and great was the anticipation of the English and Dutch captains lolling at ease on their quarter-The Spanish admiral, however, got wind of the little surprise party awaiting him, and instead of sailing up to Cadiz made straight for Vigo, which he reached safely. Then followed the sequel, so inevitable in Spanish history. The officials of the port were doubtful of their authority to take off the to steal now.

cargo and so, standing on punctilio, leisurely awaited instructions from Madrid.

Meanwhile, the outraged British and Dutch skippers, deprived of what Providence so viously had destined for their use and comfort, learned of the don's duplicity, and scurried around to Vigo. There they found the 200 galleons swinging placidly at anchor while their captains exchanged amenities with the gold-laced commandante, who attended upon the pleasure of Madrid. It took only a few broadsides to remind the culprits that they must get up early and sail far who hope to elude either an Englishman or a Dutchman after money. Down went the pride of Spain. and the belated courier from the capital found etiquette saved, but the stupendous treasure gone. In the two centuries which have elapsed since that fatal day, gun upon gun has been raised from the bottom of the harbor, but never a single bar of gold or silver; never a single doubloon, piece-of-eight, peseta or cen-

The affair at least furnished the material for one of the most thrilling adventure stories ever penned; and now the search has begun in earnest, with a group of hardy souls determined to dive, if not "20,000 leagues under the sea," at least a long way in order to recover the fabulous treasure.

"SUPERIOR INTELLIGENCE."

Unlike Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's able daughter, Sarah, one of the outstanding advocates of the "get out the vote" movement. Dr. William J. Hickson, of Chicago, director of the 'world's largest crime clinic," believes that the salvation of America lies in depriving a considerable portion of its population of the right to the ballot. Votes for the intelligent only, is his keynote. "If we continue with a political and social system which takes no account of varying mental endowments," he told members of the race betterment conference. "nothing can be done. If we revise and adapt our institutions in such a way that superior intelligence and exact knowledge can function we will be on the way to riddance from great evils and to immeasurable enrichment of life."

Dr. Hickson's proposal to turn over the control of affairs to an intellectual aristocracy is about as old and stale as anything yet suggested as a panacea.

"Superior intelligence," that mythical group to which Dr. Hickson would permit the ballot, has a far more important and difficult task to perform than the administration of Binet tests by which its inferiors would be deprived of the vote. Its duty lies in establishing its right to leadership, in guiding its activities so that it gains and holds undisputed influence over those who are not equally able to think for themselves. It is only because "superior intelligence" has, shirked its duties and refused to accept its responsibilities that the condition of which Dr. Hickson complains has come about. No one is standing in the way of any one of superior intelligence-let him go ahead and

TESTING OCEANIC FLIGHT.

Time and again Lindbergh, Chamberlin and Byrd have been called the pioneers of transceanic commercial flying. Their exploits of last summer undoubtedly opened up new vistas in connection with speedy and efficient travel, yet when one stops to consider all phases of the matter, it is apparent that commercial flying lanes to Europe have yet to be opened. The flights of last summer were of little practicable value. Each of the ships was so loaded down with fuel and supplies that no room whatsoever was left for a pay load. Before Europe and the United States can be linked through the air much additional experiment must be undertaken and completed.

With this in view, Porter Adams, president of the National Aeronautic Association, has laid before the board of governors of the organization the proposal that it sponsor at least two round-trip transatlantic flights during the coming spring and summer. One trip would be via the northern route, the other via the Azores. Approximately $100,000 would be needed to underwrite the venture, in Mr.

Once the money has been procured, the plan try for the most efficient plane that could be built. Picked pilots would be obtained from the armed services and from the commercial aviation industry, and every aeronautic and meteorologic resource of the Government would be called upon. Carefully supervised from an engineering and safety standpoint, carried out only under the most favorable weather conditions, every possible airway be tween the United States and Europe would be carefully tested out, and an effort made to establish the length of the transoceanic flying season and to define the problems in intercontinental flying that must be solved:

The time is ripe for such an undertaking. So far transoceanic flights have been severely handicapped through lack of definite data. The opinion exists that European flying will not be commercially practicable until planes more suited to the purpose are developed. The National Aeronautic Association can render genuine service in its chosen field by gathering adequate data and testing available equipment in actual service. The pioneers have demonstrated that transoceanic flying is possible. Science must now try to demonstrate that it is practicable.

Burden of Details

By ROBERT QUILLEN:

THE woman who makes her own clothes usually spends too much time on things that don't matter. The thing that matters most of all is the appearance of the garment as a whole—the fit, the lines, the affinity of garment and wearer. But the woman will spend hours over a There is ther a simple method that bit of embroidery or some similar detail, give little thought to the effect that will be attained by the garment as a whole, and end by producing a frock that fairly shouts the word "hick."

Concentration on detail magnifies the worth of details and blinds her great faults that are disastrous.

Or consider the case of the foreman who is made president of the company. He has trained himself to be keenly interested in small matters. Details have monopolized his thinking. He has never envisioned the plant and the business as a whole. When he is placed in a position of supreme authority, he is jealous of authority over little matters. Being unwilling to delegate authority and rid himself of trivial duties. he exhausts his nervous energy in an effort to be a dozen foremen instead of being one president. He fails because his mind is trained to think details of greater importance than the business itself.

Man's inability to visualize the whole while concentrating on an insignificant part explains why people who are cranks in their effort to be faultlessly righteous in some particular are astonishingly unrighteous in other particulars.

Suppose the case of a man who abominates "dead-beats." His hatred of them persuades him to believe the whole of righteousness consists in paying one's debts. His mind is focused on honesty in business, and this detail of righteousness assumes such an importance that mere honesty contents him. Because he pays his debts, he can be unrighteous in many

Senator King Would Transfer Duties to Clerk of District Supreme Court.

WILL SEEK ACTION SOON

District register of wills will be in-King, Utah, announced yesterday at a meeting of the Senate District committee. The bill, he said, would transfer functions of the register's office to the clerk of the District Supreme Court. He felt the latter could do the work more efficiently.

He felt the latter could do the work more efficiently.

Senator King, ranking Democrat on the District committee, said he would move to abolish the office immediately after he had asked the committee to delay action on the nomination of Theodore Cogswell to be register of wills.

The committee approved the recommendation of the District Commissioners that the farmers' market be temporarily located behind Center Market, and there were indications it would soon take up the question of a permanent site. Senator Glass, Virginia, favors the South Washington site recommended by the Commissioners. This would be more accessible to Virginia farmers. On the other hand, Senator Bruce, Maryland, favors a site-in Northeast Washington because it would be more advantageous to Maryland farmers.

DIVINE POWER

The Bible says, "Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God; the powers that be are obtained of God."

A widespread belief in an eternal and almighty Power, which apportions definite ends to both individuals and nations, always has existed. Of certain uncontrollable occurrences, which they are powerless to avert, men are conscious. Life and death are inevitable. Men know that a Power exists, which seems to be not of themselves and which frustrates their every effort and ignores their fruitless striving and struggling.

As men advance in life, they are gifted with a wiedom to submit more or less, to this overruling Power, which they do not fully understand. Men perceive only the effects of this Power in themselves and in the world about them.

The church's purpose is to bring about a closer understanding of the Divine Power and its relationship to life. The individual, through the church, is brought to a closer relationship with God, who shapes the life of man to coincide with the Divine Will.

nearly 5 o'clock. Even when the com- ment was as follows: mittee adjourned the members were uncommunicative, except for an announcement that a statement would be forthcoming later: When the decision of the committee was finally made public late tonight it gave Jones a clean bill of health, as follows:

"The executive committee has considered the proposed gift of a home to Robert T. Jones, Ir., by his friends in Atlanta and has fully investigated the facts. The executive committee has decided that the acceptance of the gift by him is not in violation of the association's rule governing amateur status."

This was to have been expected, for close's mane is on the ready-made slate which will be voted upon tomorrow, placing him on the executive committee for this year. Jones' own statement, which accompanied President Fownes announcement, came as a distinct surprise, but it is understood that his action was due to the general feeling of the members of the executive committee in which he house and lot. His renunciation of the gift has cleared the tamosphere and will, undoubtedly, to quote his own words, serve the best interests of the game. He has forestalled the constant criticism to which he would have been subjected and he has called a halt in

PETER PETER NEAR RECORD IN NEW ORLEANS FEATURE

Rankin Purse Annexed in Fast Time

Malvina B. Defeats Florian for Second: Sunny Port Wins.

Highland Chief Scores in Blanket Finish of Third Race.

Pair GROUNDS, New Orleans, Jan. 6 (A.P.).—The Greentree Stable's Peter Peter scored in a drive in winning the R. O. Rankin purse, a mile-and 70-yard gailop and feature of the card. He ran the distance in 1:431-5, which is just one second slower than the track record. Malvina B. landed second money, with Florian third.

Florian cut out a very fast pace.

which is just one second slower than the track record. Malvina B. landed second money, with Florian third.

Florian cut out a very fast pace, leading Peter Peter by a length or so for 7 furlongs. Peter Peter then took command and won by a length and a half. Malvina B. took the place by a head from Florian.

Baby racers held sway in the first race, and E. B. McLean's Sunny Port, with Ambrose in the saddle, was winner, leading practically all the way. Miss Dona was second and Elfreda G. third. The start was good, and Ambrose, who had the mount, rushed Sunny Port into lead. The filly drew away to win by three lengths. Miss Dona was second by a length.

Mrs. B. C. Hart's Royal Highness, well-played favorite, scored in a romp in winning the second race, a mile and a sixteenth vallop. He was plunged n at the last moment. He broke well, reted along to far turn, where he rushed to the front, increased his advantage and won by four lengths. Nose Dive was second by half a length from Fretwell.

In a blanket finish, Highland Chief, Treasurer and Dry Moon came to the finish in the order named in the third event. It was a stirring finish and the big crowd was brought to its feet. W. Bowden received a big hand for his masterly ride on the winner.

The last race was won by Yvonda, with Scotland Forever second, and Harry B, third.

Bill Hare Shows Way In Havana Feature

Oriental Park, Havana, Jan. 6 (A.P.). Today's offerings at Oriental Park included six races, four of which were decluded six races, four of which were decided under claiming conditions and the remaining two allowance affairs. Of the six numbers listed, most interest was centered around the second juvenile race of the season and the Hotel Telegrafo, a condition affair that brought out a smart array of route performers to the post.

Bill Hare outran his field to the first quarter pole, was rated along under steadying restraint by Jockey Ford, withstood keen opposition from Donetta, and just managed to stall off Helen Carter to win by a head. Helen Carter slipped through next to the inner rall and beat out Donetta by half a length for the place. Long View went to his knees at the break and trailed the field. SOCCERISTS TO BATTLE.

RAILWAY AND INDUSTRIAL BONDS KEAVILY BOUGHT

Some Carrier Issues Attain Best Prices in a Year. Oils Are Strong.

FOREIGNS RATHER HEAVY

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—Heavy buying of railway and industrial mortgages contributed to firmness in the bond market today, after a hesitant beginning. Tradera gained conndence as fears of tightening money rates subsided after gaining considerable force following the announcement of the huge increase in brokers' loans. Reinvestment funds continued to gather volume and found reflection in the heaviest trading in several weeks.

The best prices in a year or more were obtained for a number of the popular railway liens. New Haven issues attracted buyers as a result of the strengthened financial position of the road since the recent refunding operations, the 3½s exceeding their 1927 peaks. Erie loans also were in favor, 5s and general lien 4s selling in new high territory. Denver & Rio Grande Western 5s, Hudson & Manhattan 5s and Chicago & Alton 3s also responded to eager buying.

Oil issues were outstanding in the industrial group, particularly Barnsdall 6s (with warrants), Shell Union 5s, California Petroleum 5s and General Asphalt 6s, the last-named selling at 113 for the first time in more than a year. Andes Copper 7s and liquid carbonic 6s each sold more than 2 points above yesterday's closing figures. Dodge is recovering a fractional loss sustained in the early trading.

Foreign securities opened rather heavy, but received first-class support later in the session. Kingdom of Italy 7s duplicated their 1927 peak on a large turnover, and firm tendencies were followed by French, German and some of the Latin-American issues.

Third Liberty 4½s, which are scheduled for retirement beginning March 15, were accumulated in large amounts, but other Federal Government Issues, though firm, were quiet.

yesterday's setback. Scantiness of rural offerings of corn, together with smallness of corn receipts West and Southwest, as well as indications of a fair volume of export business in corn, was largely responsible.

Closing quotations both on corn and wheat were firm. Corn finished $\frac{5}{3}$ to $\frac{7}{3}$ etc. and provisions varying from 2c setback to 10c gain.

Considerable buying of corn today against sales of wheat helped at times to lift the corn market and to act as a drag on wheat. Meanwhile Missouri River points received but eighteen cars of corn today against 135 cars a year ago, and commission houses became persistent buyers of future deliveries here. Speculators who sold early found themselves forced to switch later to the buying side. One exporter alone admitted having disposed of 40,000 bushels for transactantic shipment, and Kansas City reported that some corn business with Europe was being booked right along.

in all positions are much smaller than have been looked for as a rule.

Wheat and oats reflected corn strength. Uneashess over the crop prospect for domestic winter wheat had some bullish influence too on wheat values, reports at hand suspessing the show protection West and Southwest was inadequate during the recent cold wave and that dry conditions were not fully relieved. Ecsides wheat receipts at Winnipeg today, 595 cars, were much smaller than a week are or a year back. Despite lower quotations on hoys, the provision market averaged higher. Cheanness of lard as compared to substitutes was a stimulating factor.

35 Per Cent Derived, in 1927. From Electric Light and Power Companies.

MARKET PRICES ADVANCE

By F. W. PATTERSON.

The high level of industrial prosperity in this country during the year just ended is reflected in the gross revenue of the public utility companies which have, for the first time, exceeded $5,-000,000,000.

Of this enormous total about 35 percent was serived from the electric power and light industry. In spite of the gradual reduction of rates charged consumers for this class of service the gross revenues increased from $1,569,-000,000 in 1926 to an estimated gross of between $1,750,000,000 and $1,783,000,-000 in 1927, according to a survey just completed by Pynchon & Co. The gross revenues from the street railway companion and the telephone companies of the country are almost identical for the year, each being slightly more than $1,000,000,000. The manufactured and natural gas industry combined had a gross revenue of about $800,000,000.

In preliminary estimates the apportionment in gross revenues is electric power and light, $1,783,000,000; street railways, $1,050,000,000; telephone, $1,-030,000,000; manufactured gas, $52,-000,000; natural gas, $300,000,000; telegraph, $160,000,000, and miscellaneous, $157,000,000.

The total corporate financing in the year 1927 ran above $7,000,000,000, which the survey points out, is a record never before approached. The public utility group required about 38 percent of this total, or approximately $2,-750,000,000.

The number of consumers who are financially interested in securities of companies serving them with elec-tricity is estimated at 1,000,000, against less than 1,000,000 five years ago and 4,000 in 1914, when this plan of financing was first undertaken.

HOLDS WORK IMPEDED BY SMALL BUILDINGS

Uneven Population Growth and Congressional Influx Seen as Difficulties.

Five important conditions which can not readily be improved and which make for difficulty in the administration of public education in Washing-ton were enumerated yesterday by Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of public schools, in an address at a luncheon of the City Club Forum.

The first factor explained was that of the necessity for a dual school system for white and colored pupils. This results in the necessity for a dual ad-results in the necessity for a dual administrative and supervisory staff and more or less ineffective organization of pupils into classes.

Secondly, Dr. Ballou said, there are more than 75 eight-room schools in Washington. The limitations of an eight-room building necessitates the grouping of more than one grade in a room and do not permit of maintaining with reasonable approximation a class of standard size, it was pointed out.

A third condition that hampers effective school operations; Dr. Ballou cited, is the uneven growth of population throughout the District of Columbia. The fact that the striking growth of population in the Northwest section results in great congestion in the schools of the Northwest, and a more or less static, or even declining, school population in some other sections of the city, Dr. Ballou stated.

The shifting from white to colored population in some other sections of the city, Dr. Ballou stated.

The shifting from white to colored population in certain sections of the city is another factor that impedes the efficiency of the local school system, Dr. Ballou said.

The fifth factor that school officials have to combat with yearly is the fluctuation in school population in Washington resulting from Congressional sessions.

Dependent Upon Congress.

"Every teacher and officer in Washington knows that the enrollment in our several classes are not completed until about the time the Congressional session opens December 1." Dr. Ballou declared. "Classes must be organized in anticipation of the enrollment of additional pupils about that time. The closing of the short session of Congress on March 4 results in a shift of school population, whereas the school

Diplomatic Corps Pay Stirs House Member

Making a plea for higher salaries for members of the Diplomatic Corps, Representative Davenport, of New York, in the House yesterday declared that salaries are now so low that he knows of one State Department official who has to get up at 5 o'clock every Monday morning to do the family' washing.

The representative said that the nig-
